The Comptroller Was Unable Still They Practise More or to Make More Than Vague Promises.

Richmond Botough was lighted again by electricity last night. Fifty residents of the borough came up to Manhattan yesterday to see Comptroller Coler and other Commission on questions affecting railroad whose contributions have made it. When completed, the silver book will be placed in the massive pedestal of the Loving Cup, an endearing record of the patriotism of the contributors.

The lights were turned on. It is said, without any guarantee from the city that they would be paid for. The company, however, is secured, and if the city does not pay for the street lights burned from last night on Congressman Muller will foot the bill.

The committee with Mr. Muller saw an intention to abandon the past and expressing an intention to abandon the practice.

There were nouse at lavingston ordering do, and also, as he believed, because the railroad men were growing more conscientious, there was less violation of the law than formerly.

Mr. Knapp said he had received only recently a letter from the receivers of the Baltimore & Ohlo Railroad, confessing discriminations in the past and expressing an intention to abandon the practice.

Senator Hoar Is in Europe, and the Convention Will Go Against His Views.

Governorship has ended in favor of John L. Bates, Speaker of the House of Representatives. The present Lieutenant-Governor, Winthrop Murray Crane, of Dalton, will be nominated unanimously for Governor, since Governor Wolcott has declined a fourth term. There are several candidates for the minor offices of Auditor and Treasurer.

The absence of Senators Hoar and Lodge in Europe will deprive the convention of the customary oratory. In view of the expansionist platform which is to be adopted it is doubtful if the senior Senator would be welcome.

The committee with Mr. Muller saw Comptroller Coler. Manager Swinarton of the Staten Island Electric Company was present.

The committee told Mr. Coler that the taxpayers had paid and were paying taxes to have the streets lighted, but the streets were in darkness, to the detriment of every person and every interest in the borough. Comptroller Coler replied that he could do nothing for some days at least. Mr. Swharton explained that he was willing to stand and to have them settled later, but he desired a guarantee from the city that the bills contracted from this time on would be paid.
